Stop Reacting. Be Proactive.

All organizations deal with contracts, whether from vendors, service providers or partners. These contracts are extremely diverse in nature, have unique terms and conditions and run on different expiration schedules. These qualities make it difficult to have a holistic view into the contract process flow leading to a reactive contract management process triggered only by contract expiration. Oracle Universal Content Management (UCM) provides a powerful repository for managing these contracts, and Fishbowl's Contract Management Solution leverages UCM and extends additional capabilities to contract stakeholders. These capabilities include advanced workflow, notifications, and audit capabilities that come pre-packaged and integrated. Collectively, Oracle UCM and Fishbowl Contract Management deliver a comprehensive solution to help organizations proactively manage their contracts.

Streamline Your Process

Whether you are dealing with paper-based processes or a room full of file cabinets, Oracle UCM and Fishbowl's Contract Management solution can streamline and centralize your processes. Oracle UCM and Fishbowl Contract Management apply intelligent document grouping, security, revision control, and workflows to the process of requesting, creating, reviewing, and approving contracts; ensuring the right information gets to the right people, at the right time.

Implement Quickly

Fishbowl's Contract Management Solution includes premade, industry specific forms which accelerate user familiarity. The solution also leverages other Fishbowl supported components including predictive notifications, related documents, and built in master data management, eliminating extensive customizations and leading to decreased time to value. Additionally, the included contracts wizard provides a step-by-step guide to create and issue contracts with little to no training necessary and content management expertise not required.
